League Philosophy

In recent years youth sports have become highly structured, systematic events. Children are playing more, but are they developing the fundamentals necessary to play at a higher level? The 3 on 3 basketball format provides children with the opportunity to be creative and allows them to figure the game out for themselves. The minimal structure (no set plays, no set positions, no coaches telling them what to do or where to be) increases court awareness, simulates fundamental basketball scenarios, and challenges players to become better communicators. In addition, with fewer players on the court, players touch the ball more. The math is simple: more touches = more engagement = fun = motivation to get better. In short, Triple Threat 3v3 Basketball League believes the game itself is the best teacher! It's time to bring the playground back to the player!
